

Strong. Safe. Corrosion resistant.

Chains and chain connectors made in Germany

Large selection in A2, A4 and duplex quality

Reliable corrosion protection is crucial for the service life of chains and chain connectors, especially in demanding environments. In addition to the choice of suitable material - such as stainless steel A2 (AISI304), A4 (AISI316 / AISI316L) or duplex steel (AISI318LN) - surface treatment plays a key role.

Marinetech offers chains made of high-quality A4 stainless steel and duplex steel, which are specially designed for corrosive conditions. These products are pickled and bright passivated - this removes all impurities and forms an even, seamless passive layer that significantly increases corrosion resistance.

For particularly demanding applications, e.g. in warm seawater or chemically aggressive environments, chains and products from the mt duplexLine are recommended. These combine high strength with excellent long-term protection. See products »

For more security

with the MT secureLine - delays theft and secures security-critical applications

Thanks to the special design of the TX pin socket the shackle can only be fitted or removed with the appropriate special tool. This effectively prevents unauthorized access and tampering. Ideal for public areas, maritime use or wherever maximum security is required. maximum security is required.
